GLOBE DISTRICT.

Developments and General Mining News for the Week.

The recent work done on the Sherman mine brought fine silver glance ore into sight.

The new incline in the Imperial tunnel is down 18 feet, and a smooth hanging-wall is exposed.

Prof. Martin, of the McMillen Company was at Yuma ten days ago, and is expected here soon.

The West Richmond is still doing well, and several tons of high grade assorted ore are on the dump.

A visitor to Tombstone district informs us that there are several good mines there; but the belt is quite narrow, and wood and water scarce.

Mr. Whelan is pounding away on the Jeb Stuart claim. He has good ore at the tunnel mouth, and is very hopeful as to the future of the ledge.

The owners of the Centennial mine have struck ore in a drift 60 feet from the surface. What the quantity may be has not yet been ascertained.

The connection has been effected between the Buckeye shaft and tunnel, and sinking on the vein will be pushed ahead.

Mr. Milner has started work on the Silver Era and Etna mines. Within the last six months the product of these lodes has been from $25,000 to $30,000.

A small vein of good looking spar has been cut in the Chromo tunnel. As three shifts are at work the lode will soon be reached.

The first class ore from the Helen mine pays $6 a day for the man extracting it, and the second class is clear gain. The vein is small, but rich.

In terms of the district laws, the annual miners' meeting will have to be held toward the end of November. The recorder will, no doubt, issue the necessary notices.

The owners of the Flora Temple lode, near the Cox & Coplin mines, have resumed work upon it. It is an old location, but was not valued at much until important discoveries were made in the vicinity.

We learn that the Happy Jack claim of the Isabella Company is not looking as well as it looked two weeks ago. The rich ore streak has narrowed, but will, no doubt, widen again as depth is attained.

Donald Robb is busy making experiments with a small reverberating furnace. His object is to find out the loss sustained in the roasting process, and also to try the leaching system in place of amalgamation in the saving of silver.

The second and third class ore from Cox & Coplin's mines, smelted last week at the Mexican furnace averaged about $18,000 to the ton. We saw 467 ounces of refined bullion at Shryock & Hise's store, the product of the above ore.

Drifting has been commenced on the Silver Queen mine at the depth of 80 feet. Several very promising little veins of ore have been cut, and no doubt need be entertained now about the Queen being a mine. Development is all that is required to make it a large paying property.

The Hannibal shaft is 150 feet deep, and "stringers" of vein-matter found indicate that the lode is not far off. The only water encountered comes out of the rock some distance below the surface. The permanent water-line, where sulphuretted ore will be found, has not been reached as yet.

Several nice adobe cottages are about completed between the Hannibal hoisting works and the McMillen Co.'s boarding house. It looks as if there will be a lively town in that locality sooner than in the ravine farther north where McMillen is situated, but both will grow, and probably ultimately unite.

A gentleman who recently visited the Santa Rita mountains, tells us that the reports published from time to time in a certain San Francisco evening paper, about the great wealth of the mines in that region were heinous exaggerations. He says there is a fellow out there who can create far bigger mines than ever Nature was capable of creating. If he sees a wide quartzite dyke with an occasional scab of copper-stained rock on the surface, he forthwith names it the Empress of China lode, or some other equally great name, and then in a series of letters to the newspaper aforesaid, he measures off its immense ore bodies until it is made by a plain calculation to be worth millions of dollars, whereas in reality it is but a very poor prospect. Giving notability to mines by a live-process is a poor business to follow.

The McMillen wagon road is far enough along to admit of teams getting through. It has many pitches and bends that need to be improved. But, for the money expended, $2,000, it is a very satisfactory piece of work. It is really a great public improvement. Pinal and Maricopa counties ought to give enough from their road funds to give it the finishing touch.

Joe Bruster, a trustworthy pioneer of the district, has been away five months on a prospecting trip. He spent several weeks in the Chiricahua mountains, and speaks very highly of the timber and water advantages they possess. The mines there are generally in limestone, and the ores are low-grade carbonate of lead. He comes back with a higher opinion of the Globe mineral belt than he ever had before.

We hear good accounts from the Silver King mine, over in the Pioneer district. The product of 15 stamps, with necessary concentrators, is about $75,000 per month, and for months past, only one or two hammers have been used in the mine, and yet the dumps have kept their own. There is still a large body of ore available, and sinking upon the vein therefore will be a thing of the future.

Work has been suspended on the Stonewall Jackson tunnel. Concentration of the working force on the shaft, now 155 feet deep, is thought advisable. A ton of $8,000 ore was taken last week from a little 12-foot drift run northeasterly on the foot-wall, 150 feet from the surface. The second class ore from the same drift was of itself worth a round sum. A lumber building over the shaft, 28 by 40 feet, is about completed, and hoisting works with sufficient power to go down a thousand feet have been ordered.

Mining locations are sometimes recorded without their exact situations being designated. Since the United States mining law came into use, a location which is described so indefinitely that it may be "floated" all over the district until it gobbles up some valuable discovery, will when tested in the courts be found utterly void and worthless. Prospectors should, therefore, be very careful in such matters, and it surely is the duty of the recorder to refuse to make a record when he cannot know by the notice where the claim really is.

Flying Chips.

It is announced that J. M. Wilson, a large New Mexico flockmaster, is about to bring his sheep to Globe district. O, ye horny-handed old bachelor miners, here is consolation for you now. When another summer comes along, you will not be the only deserted lambs that will be found on our hillsides.

To-night the elite of Globe will "chase the fleeting hours with flying feet." An attaché of this office complains that it has been his luck to be slighted when fun and frolic were on tip-toe; that only twice has he been honored with an invitation to grace a gathering by his presence—once to a "grand opening" of a saloon in Texas and the other to a "logging bee" in Canada; but says he never felt that his social standing was questioned until denied admission to a firemen's ball in Nevada.

When at table always thrust your knife into your mouth as if you intended to swallow it. The practice has several advantages—it keeps the knife clean, makes it go through the butter easily, and enables a man to use such a weapon handily without increasing the width of his mouth. To see a broad, sharp, gleaming knife slashing into a young lady's mouth and coming out again, like a weaver's shuttle, without a stream of blood following it is a very pretty sight, as it proves what wondrous skill the human hand is capable of when properly trained.

O. L. Scott and Capt. J. T. Roots left for the east by Lacy's Express.

Santiago Gonzales' train, fifty-two days out from Colorado, unloaded at Shryock & Hise's last Tuesday.

Peter R. Brady and J. P. Gabriel, contestants for the office of sheriff, and F. P. Nassoletti, candidate for county treasurer, were in town in this week.

A. P. Brown, candidate for the council, will address the voters in this village, on Saturday evening. Aaron Mason, of the King mine, candidate for Supervisor, will also be here at the same time.

Charles Batchelder, Lacy's driver, was killed and stripped by Indians on the plain, eight miles west of Buro Springs, N. M. A mule was also killed, the other was taken by the Indians, and subsequently made his appearance on the Gila near the stage station.

The Haskin mill will be ready to fire up about the 1st of October. Mr. H. has engaged four four-mule teams, which will commence hauling ore on Monday. Professor Caldwell and Mr. Bixby are expected here on the 1st inst. K. Lanis is hourly expected.

Joseph Galbraith, a resident of the Gila valley, near Richmond, N. M., coming to Globe with potatoes, lost two horses within four miles of this place on the night of the 21st, which he supposes were taken by Indians. One is a bay, pony built, heavy, with star in the forehead; the other is a strawberry roan, medium size, has "sore withers, right fore and right hind leg white from knee down.

We learn from parties lately arrived here from the Silver King mine, that Mr. Saxe has improved the trail a great deal, and made it much more convenient for travel than formerly. He has been at considerable expense, and should be remunerated from the county road fund, for the cost he has been put to. This is not the first time that Mr. Saxe has cleaned out the trail; but for him, it would be almost impossible.

John P. Clum.

To the Editor of the Belt: I have once or twice "gone after" John P. Clum, of the Arizona Citizen, in your pages, because I thought he deserved it, and would not be hurt by any little nibbling I could do at his active heels. I write now, however, in all sincerity to say that I wish we had Mr. Clum at the San Carlos reservation as Indian agent now. He has his faults, and of course has his enemies; but he certainly knew how to manage the Indian bands so as to give peace and security. I should like to see him back at the reservation again, with power to carry on the agency business to his own liking.

SILICA RINGWOOD.

A Chicago wholesale grocery house which a few years ago carried sixteen drummers at an expense of $40,000 per annum and did an almost profitable business, has abandoned the drummer system, spends one-fourth their cost annually in newspaper advertising, dividing the balance among customers. As a natural result, their trade has increased ten-fold, and the net profits to the house in 1877 were $130,000. This year they will do still better.

Reduction in Prices.

Coffee, by the sack, 30c; sugar, 21c; soap, $3.50; candles, $4.00 (20 in a box); $9; bacon, per 100 pounds, $22; lard, by the box, 22c.

Fresh's Building, Globe, Arizona.

Mr. Gonzales' train brought in on Tuesday last 25,000 pounds of assorted merchandise for Shryock & Hise. They have now the largest assortment ever brought to this part of the Territory.

Candidates and everybody, go to Shryock & Hise's, and get anything you want.
